

A group of Singapore investors and analysts comprising professionals from UOB Kay Hian, Genesis Capital, Fortune Capital, AM Fraser, Emirates Tarian Asset Management and Compass Financial, had the chance to visit Shiitake Mushroom Cultivation Bases in Zhangping City during a visit from 10 – 12 December 2010. Yamada Green Resources Limited (“Yamada”) organised the visit for the investors and analysts to experience firsthand the cultivation process of Shiitake mushroom.

Mr. Chen Qiu Hai, the executive chairman and CEO of Yamada, was on hand to welcome the guests. The group first toured the wholesale centre in Longyan City where they witnessed the vibrant activities in the local agricultural products market. They then visited mushroom cultivation bases and mushroom processing facilities where they viewed the cultivation process of Shiitake mushroom. The Deputy General Manager of Zhangping Fengwang Agricultural Products Co, Ltd, Yamada’s wholly-owned subsidiary, summarised the cultivation base visit with a presentation on the various cultivation stages involved in Shiitake mushroom growing. After the presentation, the group had the chance to taste the dishes prepared from fresh Shiitake mushrooms. At the end of the program, the group explored the eucalyptus tree plantations which will give Yamada the potential upstream resource sustainability by adopting the use of synthetic logs made from eucalyptus sawdust in future cultivation of Shiitake mushroom.

The group was impressed by Yamada’s operations and is confident on the outlook of Yamada’s business. The group visit ended with pleasant memories of their time with Yamada in Zhangping City.
